

A TOUGH JOURNEY

When I fixed my credit it was difficult to find motivation to do what was necessary to repair my credit. Negative emotions can paralyze you. I lost it all financially when I sold my business to a company that went bankrupt. I was stuck holding the debt obligations, but no longer had my steady stream of income. Not being able to pay your obligations no matter the reason was troubling for me. Not to mention the reality that to fix your credit or improve your financial situation always entails more than your fair share of humility. The problem with this cycle is that we don't think clearly, like we do in positive situations. We don't research out more competitive credit card companies, auto loan suppliers, and credit repairing options like we do other consumer products. Nor do we want to pass on what works to our friends.

So, here is what I'm asking you to do:

- 1) Give a friend a call and let them know this worked. Here is why it works and they should be given the same great service you had:
 - a. We are a referral based company registered with the Missouri Division of Finance.
 - b. We are long tenured in this business (Est. 2007) and passionate about helping people. There is a reason why we carry Better Business Bureau Accreditation and are highly rated on Google.
 - c. Each person is unique and we don't take on cases that aren't going to help the client. Why would companies charge a monthly fee and allow people to cancel in the middle of the process without a positive result? It's because they're not 100% focused on positive customer feedback.
- 2) Let me call them when it's convenient for them. I'm not going to have an automated machine call them or sell their contact information. I'm going to call them personally and begin to earn their trust and business.

I realize that no matter what I suggest some people are only so comfortable referring this service. So, please let me know what option you will choose on the referral form. I greatly value your service and what to earn more business as a result of a job done well.

Sincerely,
